Biomedical research with a coffee: Building new collaborations

On April 24, the Department of Law participated with IRB Lleida in a collaborative session for the integration of economic and legal aspects in health research and management, which is crucial to evaluate the efficiency, sustainability and accessibility of health innovations.

The aim of these sessions is to facilitate the exchange of ideas between research staff to identify common interests and promote collaborations, promote interdisciplinary projects and exhibit the lines of research and resources of each institution to maximize its impact.
